

TRAGEDY LEADS TO INTROSPECTION, REFORM, and GOOD NEWS

Bishop Chilton Knudsen, a woman in active recovery from alcoholism, was selected to replace former Bishop Heather Cook, accused of hitting and killing cyclist Thomas Palermo in April 2015, while under the influence of alcohol, while texting and then leaving the site of the accident. The following two articles focus upon the positive efforts to learn from this tragedy.

The May 26, 2015 Episcopal News Service (ENS) article about Bishop Chilton Knudsen on addiction and recovery at Wellness Conference in Pennsylvania:

<http://episcopaldigitalnetwork.com/ens/2015/05/26/pennsylvania-clergy-confront-addiction-recovery-at-wellness-day/>

Transcript of the May 26, 2015 NPR interview with Bishop Chilton Knudsen:

<http://www.npr.org/2015/05/26/409672010/md-episcopal-diocese-chooses-replacement-for-defrocked-bishop>